About Workshop

United Scientific Group (USG) in association with Istanbul University (IU) will host “2nd. Istanbul Probiotics Workshop 2016” on May 26, 2016 at IU, Faculty of Veterinary Medicine, Turkey. The workshop aims to explore critical points in probiotics-beneficial microbes by providing an opportunity to the participants and young researchers to discuss various issues pertaining to their research career. It gives an understanding of the beneficial microorganisms, possible beneficial health affects, probiotic foods, its advancements, and importance to the participants. The workshop will also include presentations about universities that have developed innovative researches to these problems and discussions by education leaders about applications and solutions for other actions that could relieve critical situation and improve the efficiency and effectiveness in the coming generation.

On completion of this workshop in IU, the participants will be able to connect with an expert scientific network. In addition, it also creates and develops a platform to gain knowledge.

As a single session workshop with interactive class discussions between a student, young researchers and renowned speaker’s peer-revision for the beneficial microbes, the meeting takes its point of departure in the academics as he would be accredited with a certificate that he/she is trained in this subject.
